DEFENDERS PROTECT THE PUBLIC, SAVE MONEY, AND IMPROVE LIVES

Over the last year, our public defenders have protected the public from wrongful prosecutions, overcharging, and excessive sentences, saved millions of dollars of taxpayer money with the hundreds of alternative community-based sentences that focused on treatment instead of very costly incarceration, and improved the lives of countless of our children and young adults living in neglectful or abusive families who face the grip of addiction or struggle with mental illness or extreme poverty.

Our primary value is the professional representation of our clients, one by one, all 154,096 of them. Defenders do this work to ensure that the challenge to the liberty of their indigent clients is done through a fair process and that the results their clients receive are reliably just.

As the 44th year of providing professional independent legal representation to our clients begins, we Public Advocacy Commissioners are proud of the value defenders provide to our cherished American system of justice.

Sincerely,

Jerry J. Cox

THE VALUE OF PUBLIC DEFENSE:

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC, SAVING MONEY, IMPROVING LIVES

Prosecution, public defense, courts, and law enforcement serve vital roles ensuring the justice system works reliably and efficiently. There are substantial financial benefits to society when public defense is properly funded. Public defenders who are competent, who have manageable workloads, and who have professional independence ensure that the rights guaranteed by our Constitution are protected and ensure that no one's liberty is taken unless they are proven guilty. Public defenders lower costly incarceration rates for counties and the state by advocating for pretrial release and alternative or reduced sentences. When staffed adequately, public defenders increase efficiencies and prevent overcharging and expensive wrongful convictions. In addition to protecting the freedoms of the accused, public defense is central to our public safety.

EDWARD C. MONAHAN

PRIORITIES FOR KENTUCKY'S RIGHT TO COUNSEL

FURTHER INVESTMENT IN KENTUCKY'S RIGHT TO COUNSEL WILL SAVE MONEY

The Department of Public Advocacy's 4-point plan would meet Kentucky's constitutional mandate of the right to counsel and also provide real, tangible, sustainable savings to the criminal justice system. Additional funding is needed to continue Kentucky public defenders' essential work and meet national standards for the constitutional right to counsel.

THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC ADVOCACY'S 4-POINT PLAN

Innovative work with proper staffing and funding will result in overall cost savings to Kentucky taxpayers, and result in reliable case outcomes that will protect the safety and quality of life of citizens throughout the Commonwealth.

1. Reduce unnecessary cost in the criminal justice system responsibly by creating more alternative sentencing options for judges, thereby reducing the number of cases in the system.
2. Provide resources to ensure that cases are timely, fully, and fairly resolved by realigning the 33 DPA trial offices to 57 offices to improve efficiency, increasing time local conflict lawyers spend on cases, and reducing costly delays due to turnover of defenders by providing positions and compensation levels sufficient to attract and retain high quality legal professionals.
3. Ensure ethical workloads that allow for timely processing of cases by recognizing that legal representation of indigents accused of a crime is a necessary and required governmental expense.
4. Ensure full, professional independence from other parts of the state criminal justice system by converting DPA to a cabinet level agency.

Michael was wrongfully charged with Possession of a Handgun by a Convicted Felon, Misdemeanor Fleeing from a Police Officer and Resisting Arrest, offenses that could carry a potential sentence of 10 years in prison. Fortunately, his public defender discovered a problem with the charge of Possession of a Handgun by a Convicted Felon. Michael was not a convicted felon. The felony charge was dismissed and Michael was released from custody. DPA Attorney Eva Hager's quick thinking and advocacy for her client at his first court appearance saved the county all the costs associated with incarceration from the time of arrest until the resolution of the case. This could have been thousands of dollars, depending on how long the case lingered pending resolution.

MICHAEL FACED 10 YEARS IN PRISON FOR A CRIME HE DID NOT COMMIT

Michael still faced misdemeanor charges. On these, DPA Attorney Tamara Scull represented Michael after his arraignment. Police reports revealed that the police first came into contact with Michael when they received a call about a fight inside an apartment complex. This call did not involve Michael, and Michael was not involved in the fight. Upon their arrival at the scene, the police stopped Michael because he looked "suspicious" in a "high crime area." Attorney Scull met with Michael and his family, and learned that Michael was actually walking away from the building, where his father lived, when the police officer tried to talk to him. When he did not respond after the officer's second attempt to talk to him, the officer drew his weapon. Frightened by the gun, Michael started to run. He was caught and arrested. Armed with evidence of Michael's unlawful stop and arrest, Attorney Scull filed a motion to suppress. After a hearing, the Court agreed with Attorney Scull and held that the officer should not have stopped Michael in the first place, and all charges were dismissed. Through focused motion practice and client-centered representation, Attorney Scull saved the county and state the cost of a District Court trial.

Public Defenders like Attorney Hager and Attorney Scull are saving Kentucky taxpayer's money every single day.

DPA's 33 trial offices across the Commonwealth provide representation to indigent clients in adult criminal, juvenile, civil contempt, and involuntary commitment cases. Kentucky defender teams improve lives by insisting clients be treated fairly while guarding all constitutional protections for each client we serve. DPA attorneys, investigators, alternative sentencing specialists, and administrative professionals all have a vital role to play as part of the mission of DPA.

BROAD-BASED SUPPORT FOR THE RIGHT TO COUNSEL

SENATOR CHUCK GRASSLEY OF IOWA, CHAIR SENATE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

"When misdemeanor defendants aren't given counsel, no one can challenge the legality of a traffic stop or to make the prosecution prove every element of an offense beyond a reasonable doubt. So innocent people may be going to jail. In locations where lawyers are provided at every stage of the process, about 25% of all cases are dismissed.

These constitutional violations cause serious repercussions. People who are convicted of misdemeanors, whether they received legal representation or not, may have problems obtaining a job for the rest of their lives. That hurts them. It hurts the economy. It hurts all of us."

"Grassley Statement at a Judiciary Committee Hearing on Protecting the Constitutional Right to Counsel for Indigents Charged with Misdemeanors." Judiciary Committee Hearing. (May 13, 2015).

IDAHO GOVERNOR BUTCH OTTER

"I hope you will consider it equally important to continue our work toward addressing the very real challenge we face in our public defense system. The courts have made it clear that our current method of providing legal counsel for indigent criminal defendants does not pass constitutional muster. This is a priority for our counties so it also must be a priority for us. If we value the ideals embodied in the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Eighth amendments to the U.S. Constitution, then it is undeniably our responsibility to take the phrase 'due process of law' as seriously as the Framers intended."

"State of the State and Budget Address." (Jan. 12 2013). Speech.

CHARLES G. KOCH, KOCH INDUSTRIES

"All of my life, I have supported and championed the Bill of Rights, which is the bedrock upon which our free society was built. We are supportive of...efforts to make the Sixth Amendment's guarantee of an individual's right to counsel a reality for all Americans, especially those who are the most disadvantaged in our society."

"Koch Industries Gives Grant to NACDL "to address the Nation's Profound Indigent Defense Crisis"." Washington Post. The Washington Post (Oct 21, 2014).

DAVID CARROLL, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
SIXTH AMENDMENT CENTER

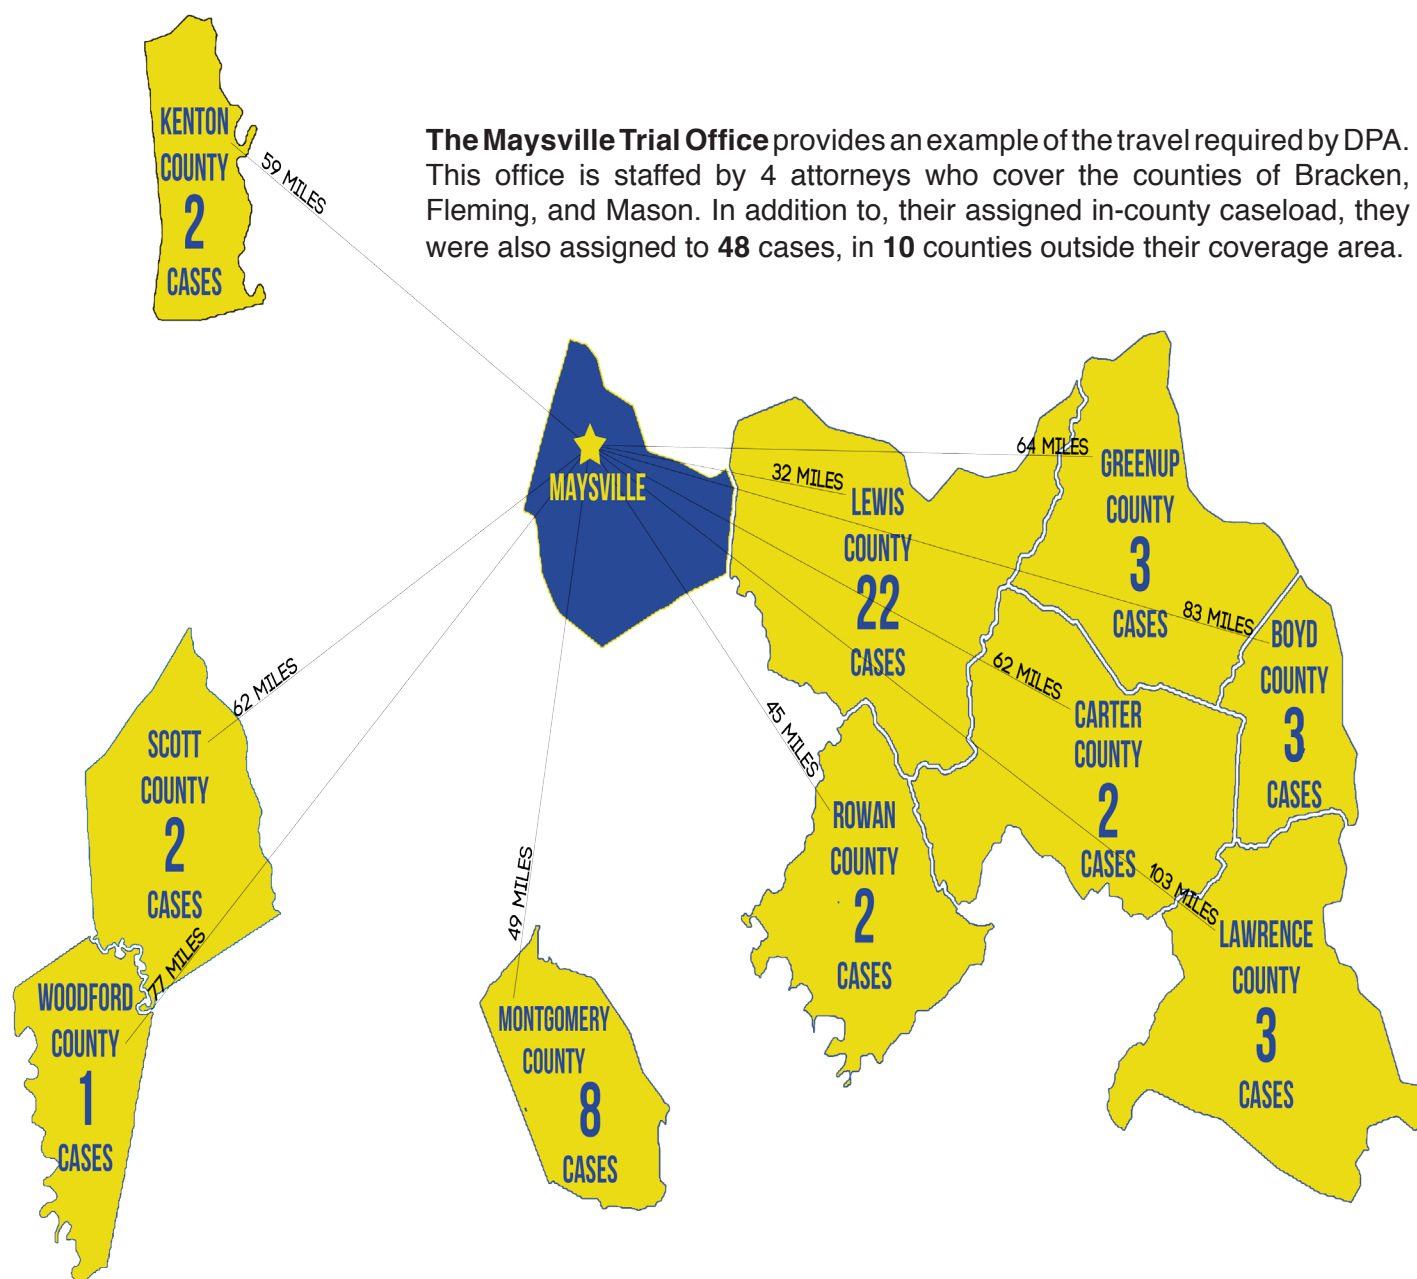

"The reason more and more conservatives are supporting the right to counsel is because our criminal justice systems have evolved without the necessary checks and balances that competent defense lawyers bring to guard against tyranny. Conservatives may believe in smaller government, but they also believe in the Bill of Rights."

"Gideon's Despair," The Marshall Project (Jan. 2, 2015).

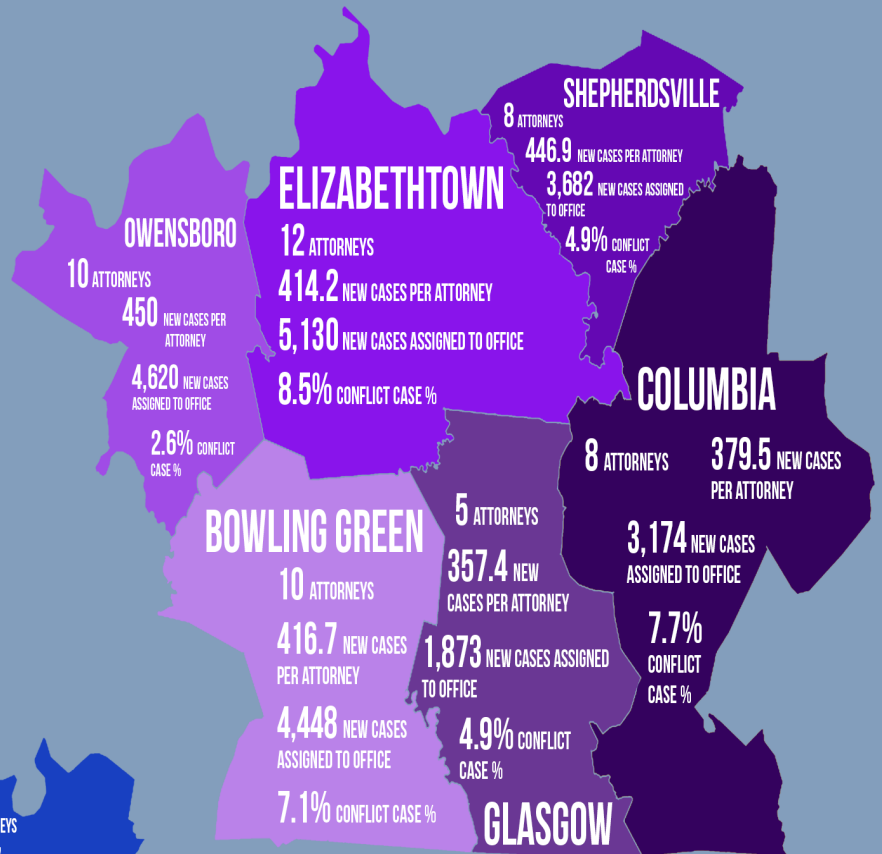

199,068 MILES IN 3,618 HOURS

In FY15, public defenders covered 1,194 cases in areas other than those normally assigned to them when an other office could not handle a case due to a conflict of interest or an attorney shortage. If the attorneys in each case traveled just two times for each case, DPA attorneys spent 3,618 hours (483 work days) traveling 199,068 miles in a car just to get to a distant county, usually to handle a single case. When factoring in client visits, court appearances, and witness interviews, the number of trips to handle these cases is often much higher.

Liberty and justice for all, especially the wrongly convicted: America is about fairness and freedom. If you have been wronged, American values require that you have the right to prove the mistake and have it corrected. Some fear, in our complex society that we cannot reconcile fairness in process, while protecting liberty as the process undermines finality. However, many cases in our system require correction after conviction. The Post-Trial Division is there for those people who have been treated unfairly by the justice system.

The Post-Trial Division advances fair process and liberty: In Kentucky's criminal justice system, DPA's Post-Trial Division serves the critical function of identifying and seeking the correction of mistakes that affect someone's life or liberty. Post-Trial Division attorneys will be there to provide important representation after the completion of a trial case, whether it is handling appeals as guaranteed by our state constitution, litigating post-disposition challenges for juvenile clients on issues related to the fact, duration or conditions of confinement, representing adult inmates in post-conviction challenges to their convictions, or representing persons who have been wrongly accused to obtain exonerations.

The Post-Trial Division received a total of 738 new cases in FY15

- The Appeals Branch filed 292 original briefs and orally argued 13 cases in the Supreme Court of Kentucky and the Kentucky Court of Appeals.
- The Juvenile Post-Disposition Branch was assigned 100 new clients on appeal, or in a post-disposition or sentencing action.
- The Post-Conviction Branch opened 139 new post-conviction cases in state or federal court, all of which involved claims of wrongful conviction or an inappropriate sentence. The branch also represented 34 capital clients.
- The Kentucky Innocence Project represented 6 individuals in court cases claiming innocence, assisted law students in investigating 24 other possible claims of innocence, and reviewed 173 innocence cases.

PROTECTING OUR MOST VULNERABLE CITIZENS

Sequoia spent a large part of her childhood in foster care bouncing from placement to placement. Her troubled upbringing did not dampen her bright smile and outgoing personality. At sixteen she met an older man and she ran away from her foster home. One day they entered a supermarket and robbed it. Sequoia was charged with complicity to robbery in the first degree and was transferred from juvenile court to circuit court as a youthful offender under the automatic transfer statute. It was her first brush with the law. Sequoia pled guilty in circuit court and was remanded to the custody of the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ). Sequoia was placed at Morehead Youth Development Center, a staff secure girls facility with DJJ. There she became involved with the greyhound program and trained two retired racing dogs so they could be adopted. She received awards for resident of the week and resident of the month. After a continued 18 year old probation hearing to allow her time to complete the program at Morehead and to step down to a lower level facility, the circuit court probated Sequoia rather than transferring her to prison. Sequoia left DJJ custody with no family support, but through the hard work of JPDB, community resources were identified and she was linked with a place to live and employment opportunities. Today, Sequoia is an adult member of our community with a brighter future ahead of her.

The Public Value of the DPA Alternative Sentencing Worker Program: advancing public safety and saving counties and state incarceration cost

DPA Alternative Sentencing Workers (ASW) provide a vital service to the public. They work with clients and develop defense generated, community based alternative sentencing plans that assure judges and prosecutors that public safety is accounted for and actual rehabilitation is in place. This offsets very expensive jail or prison costs. ASWs help motivate clients into participating actively in treatment and rehabilitation. This is critical because while court mandates can get individuals to attend treatment sessions, what individuals actually get from treatment depends on their willing interest in and acceptance of new information. Using motivational interviewing, ASWs help encourage that willingness, improving the odds that treatment will have beneficial effects.

The DPA Alternative Sentencing Program uses evidence-based practices

To enhance the value of the services and to increase the likely success of the program, DPA Alternative Sentencing Workers use motivational interviewing. It has a lengthy history in the substance abuse field (Lundahl & Burke, 2009; Miller & Rollnick, 1991; Miler & Rollnick, 2002). It is used widely for substance abuse clients who are referred by the criminal justice system (Ginsburg, Mann, Rotgers, & Weekes, 2002). More specifically, it has been shown to increase engagement with treatment and staying in treatment (Carroll, Ball, Nich, Martino, Frankforter, Farentino, et al., 2006).

PUBLIC DEFENDERS IMPROVE LIVES

Suffering from untreated mental health issues and drug addiction, “Alyssa” was in custody at the Fayette County Detention Center. Alyssa was then in her early 30’s and the single mother of two children. What Alyssa desperately needed was treatment, but without a helping hand it seemed far more likely that her fate was to be revoked and sentenced to prison for violating her probation.

Alyssa’s history is one of trauma, having been raped in college. She never received mental health or counseling services, and was unable to heal mentally from her attack. Her mental health issues went hand-in-hand with her history of substance abuse, which had never been successfully treated or addressed. Without proper intervention, Alyssa’s chances of getting healthy were slim. While she welcomed the idea of treatment, Alyssa did not have the means or resources to locate appropriate treatment.

Alyssa’s DPA Attorney, Christopher Tracy, recognized that Alyssa was struggling and referred her case to the newly hired DPA Alternative Sentencing Worker (ASW), Anthony

TIRELESS EFFORTS OF THE ASW, ALYSSA’S FUTURE IS BRIGHT.

Tanner. Anthony met with Alyssa at the jail, and identified factors that would make it difficult for Alyssa to succeed without treatment. Armed with information about Alyssa and her history, Mr. Tanner explored and coordinated treatment service options. Using cultivated relationships in the treatment community, Mr. Tanner was notified when a long-term treatment bed was available for Alyssa. Once treatment was secured, Mr. Tanner was able to work with the Probation Officer and the Judge’s office to have Alyssa released to the treatment center that same day. Instead of revoking probation and having Alyssa serve her sentence as a state prisoner, Hon. Kimberly Nell Bunnell followed the Alternative Sentencing Plan presented DPA, ordering Alyssa released to the treatment center to receive the treatment she desperately needs to combat her addiction. Recognizing that the battle against addiction may be a long one, Mr. Tanner remains in communication with Alyssa to provide encouragement and support.

WITHOUT PROPER INTERVENTION,
ALYSSA’S CHANCES OF GETTING HEALTHY WERE SLIM.

As of July, Alyssa had completed a majority of the groups and classes that the treatment center offers, and was looking for employment. She is being patient and not taking the first job that comes along, by using all available resources to find a “good” job. After working and paying rent for four weeks, Alyssa will be eligible for the independent living portion of the program, where she will be able to have both of her children with her full time, which she looks forward to greatly. Thanks to the tireless efforts of Mr. Tanner and Alyssa’s willingness to accept treatment, Alyssa’s future is bright.

By addressing the underlying issues that lead to criminal conduct, ASW’s improve the lives of clients, their friends, and family. In turn, the community benefits from the dedication and creative problem solving of Alternative Sentencing Workers.

PROTECTION AND ADVOCACY

PROTECTING AND PROMOTING THE RIGHTS OF KENTUCKIANS WITH DISABILITIES

PROTECTION AND ADVOCACY LEADERS

Protection and Advocacy (P&A) is staffed with professional advocates and attorneys who advocate working together with people who have disabilities to promote and protect their legal rights. (See P&A's Annual Report located at <http://www.kypa.net/>). On July 31, 2014, Jeff Edwards took over as Director of P&A, following the retirement of Marsha Hockensmith. Marsha served the Commonwealth of Kentucky for 28 years, twenty years with P&A, serving the last six years as Director. During her time with P&A, Marsha worked tirelessly to protect and promote the rights of Kentuckians with disabilities.

Improvements in FY15:

P&A and the Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS) signed an Interim Settlement Agreement (ISA) that will provide much needed community supports and services to eligible individuals living in Personal Care Homes (PCH) or at risk of living in a PCH. Kentuckians living in a PCH do not require the intensive medical care provided by nursing facilities, but do require care beyond room and board. The majority of those living in PCHs receive state financial assistance to supplement federal dollars to enable them to live outside of a higher cost facility. For the first time in Kentucky, persons with a mental illness now have a choice to live and receive services in the community due to the ISA changing the way community based services are delivered. The Kentucky Court of Appeals' CHFS v. Bratcher affirmed the Franklin Circuit Court's ruling that persons with developmental disabilities who have IQs higher than 70 can qualify for a Support of Community Living (SCL) home and community based waiver. SCL provides an array of services like day programs and respite which help people with intellectual and developmental disabilities avoid institutionalization, so they may live in the community.

The Protection & Advocacy for Individuals with Mental Illness (PAIMI) Advisory Council and P&A were honored to participate in the 50th Anniversary of the 1964 Civil Rights March. Participating in the march provided an opportunity for P&A to recognize Civil Rights leaders and activists whose courage and perseverance not only paved the way to ending segregation in the state and nationally, but lead to the passage of laws making it illegal to discriminate against other individuals who have fought hard to have their rights protected.

RECOGNIZING THOSE ADVANCING THE RIGHT TO COUNSEL

The right to counsel stands above all other constitutional protections. “Of all the rights that an accused person has, the right to be represented by counsel is by far the most pervasive for it affects his ability to assert any other rights he may have.” U.S. v. Cronin, 466 U.S. 648, 654 (1984). Public defenders statewide gathered June 16, 2015, to recognize individuals advancing the right to counsel and protections for persons facing a loss of liberty. Presentations were made during the 2015 Kentucky Public Defender Recognition Lunch in Lexington, Kentucky.
